DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1, 2, 5, 6, 8-10, 13, 15, 16, 17, 20 and 21 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being clearly anticipated by Marin et al (USP 5,936,940).

Regarding claims 1, 8, 9 and 16, Marin discloses a method and system and computer readable medium (see abstract), comprising:

incrementing a port transmission rate using a variable resolution (Figs. 1, 5 & 6, col 9 line 9 – col 10 line 47.); and transmitting data through the port using the incremented port transmission rate (Figs 1, 4-6, col 11 line 25 – col 12 line 27).

Regarding claims 2, 10 and 17, Marin discloses the resolution is a function of the rate (Figs. 6.).

Regarding claims 5, 13 and 20, the resolution is a function of segmented rate ranges (see Fig. 6).

Regarding claims 6, 14 and 21, (see Fig. 5) resolution is 64 Kbps in a first range (region 1), 1 Mbps in a second range, and 8 Mbps in a third range (regions Ln-2, Ln-3).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 3, 4, 11, 12, 18 and 19 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Marin et al (USP 6,219,343 B1) in view Honkasalo et al (USP 6,219,343 B1).

Marin fails to disclose resolution inversely proportional to the rate, and/or resolution decrease exponentially as the rate increases.

Honkasalo discloses the resolution is inversely proportional to the rate (see col 3 lines 15-25.) and the resolution decreases exponentially as the rate increases (col 7 lines 25-40, as data rate increases the resolution decreases based on a given transmission power and therefore lower Eb/No values and more interference respectively). Variable rate changes allows for an efficient data rate services without depletion of resources. Thus it would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to incorporate the teachings of Honkasalo within Marin so as to improve network efficiency by allocating different data rates to services as required.

Claims 7, 15 and 22 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Marin et al (USP 6,219,343 B1) in view of Miao (US 2004/0017306A1)

Marin discloses segmented data rates, however, Marin fails to disclose segmented data rates in range above 2Mbps to 1000Mbps.

Miao discloses segmented data rates in range above 2Mbps to 1000Mbps, (see Fig. 6, paras 35-37, the Mux 132 produces on of several data in range from 50Mbps to 1 Gbps.). The inclusion of an scalable high speed data rate converter allows for multiple sources of data reception of various resolutions and magnitude including audio, video, HD video, high speed data transference, etc..

Thus it would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to incorporate the teachings of Miao within Marin so to improve network capabilities by allowing for multiple input sources of differing magnitude to be incorporated in a network as desired.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1-22 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.
